Mr. Chas. M. Cooten and family left on Saturday morning for Edmonton, where they intend to spend the winter.

The Missionary Anniversary services of Sunday last were well attended and the addresses of Rev. T. W. Bateman, Missionary from China, were thoroughly enjoyed. Owing to his intimate acquaintance with Chinese life Mr. Bateman has not only come into sympathetic touch with the Chinaman, but has also acquired a strong admiration for the Chinese character. China has now one quarter of the earth's population and is bound to occupy a leading if not a dominant position in the days to come.

Last week Rev. Geo. A. Steele paid a visit to Riddellvale and Cereul.

Mrs. W. A. Coates of Seal, left for Chicago this morning, where she will spend the winter months with her son.

RALPH GREENE,
Sec'y-Treas.

At a meeting of the Oyen Board of Trade, last week the Car Shortage at this point was discussed at some length, and The Alberta Pacific Elevator Company was harshly criticised for lowering the price on grain taken into their new bin, the capacity of which is thirty thousand bushels.

Mr. Quinn, the local manager for the Alberta Pacific Co., was present at the meeting and defended the Company's action. He said his company had built the new bin to accommodate the farmers of this district, and he thought there should be no objection raised because the price had been lowered on account of the extra handling.

As a result of the discussion which followed a resolution was passed that the secretary write to the Grain Commission regarding prices paid at points on the C. P. R. in comparison with prices paid at points on the C. P. R. and G. T. P. and ask for an explanation of this. Also that some immediate steps be taken to get cars to Oyen to relieve the situation.

In the district tributary to Oyen, over one million bushels of grain has been harvested this year, and owing to the almost continuous shortage of cars, the elevators are frequently full up for days at a stretch. This is driving business from Oyen. Farmers who have always done their trading at Oyen are now taking their grain to other points. Many of the farmers in the south country are going to Ennise, while the farmers to the north are hauling their grain to Lovena and even Stonor.

Field Marshall Sir John French Retires From Command

Has Been Created Viscount in Recognition of His Services

In London the retirement of Field Marshall Sir John French from command of the British forces in France temporarily overshadowed other war news. The new commander-in-chief, Sir Douglas Haig, who is almost the youngest general in the British army, enters upon his duties with a high reputation. He has seen more hard fighting than any other general in the British army.

Across the Andes

The following account of a trip from Valparaiso, Chile, to the West coast of South America, to Buenos Ayres on the East coast of South America, was written by Mr. R. V. Winder, one of the party who made the trip.

But we were not so fortunate when the packmen came along, for we lost three: they rolled down the mountain side, and I have often wondered if they are rolling yet. They never bothered to hunt up either the mules or baggage. I suppose mules and baggage would be spread of a wide area, and it would be cheaper to pay the $100 insurance which is the limit. After a few other incidents, scarcely worth mentioning, we arrived at the foot of the Via Crucis, much to the enjoyment of everybody, for we had begun to think that we were never going to get off that zig-zag road. It had taken us just 11 hours to cross from Juneau, the hardest day's work I have ever done. But we were not finished yet. We still had another half hour's ride before us, so we all got aboard our mules again. At 12:30 we reached Las Cuevas, and here we parted with our mules. Somewhere between Las Cuevas and the foot of the mountains, Darwin says, "that he saw a spot where a cluster of fine trees once waved their branches on the shores of the Atlantic when that ocean, now driven back 700 hundred miles, came to the foot of the Andes. This, I suppose, has been caused by volcanic influence. Here we had breakfast, for which we paid $6.00 each, and a very poor meal it was, but cheapsidering the distance the provisions had to be brought. We left again about 2 o'clock in four-horse coaches, travelling all the way to the Andes, which are sheer precipices for most of the journey. After about two hours we came to what is called the "Puente de los Incaes." This phenomenon is very much spoken of in both Chile and in the Argentine, but I must say I was very much disappointed when I saw it. Darwin says: "that when one hears of a natural bridge one pictures to oneself some deep and narrow ravine across which a bold mass of rock has fallen, or a great arch hollowed out like the vault of a cavern." Instead of this I found a bridge composed of flattened shingles cemented together by the deposits of the neighbouring hot springs. It appears as if the stream has scooped out a channel on one side leaving an overhanging ledge which was met by earth and stones falling down from the opposite cliff. Certainly an oblique junction, as would happen in such a case, was very distinct on one side. The bridge of the Inca is by no means worthy of the great names whose names it bears. Proceeding, we arrived at Punta de Vacas, where we again commenced to travel by rail, about six o'clock, and after going through the customs we thus concluded the second and most eventful day of our journey.

Here we had far better accommodation than we had the previous night at Juneau, and as the train did not leave for Mendoza before 11 o'clock the next morning, most of us turned in pretty early and felt none the worse for our journey across the Andes. At 11 o'clock we set off in a similar class of train to the one in Chile and by the same line for Mendoza where we arrived at 5 p.m.

Ayes, exactly four days from the time we left Valparaiso, Chile, to cross the Andes.

Back to Consciousness

The sick man had just come out of a long doleful dream. "Where am I?" he said feebly as he felt the loving hands making him comfortable. "Where am I, in heaven?" "No dear," cooed his devoted wife. "I am still with you."

Have a Heart There, Judge!

The Prison Mirror, a newspaper printed within the walls of a penitentiary in Minnesota, is being conducted under great difficulties. There is not an editor on the roll of guests. "Why is it," says an article in the Mirror, "that from the first inception of our paper, up to the present time, we have never had an editor to join in our midst? Other professions have been well represented. Of preachers we have had enough to furnish substance to a canonical chief for years of doctors sufficient in numbers to depopulate a state of lawyers enough to establish a good-sized legal firm in h— But of editors—not one. Of course, it is only fair to remark, on be half of the editors, that they always have a "pull" with the police. In addition to which, the editors elect or delect the makers of laws; make fame for the lawyers, money for the doctors, and trouble for the preachers. Never having any money, it never does any good to fine an editor; will not judge with any heart, would ever send an editor to jail, knowing what a h— of a time he has at home trying to get out the paper, beat the sheriff, and make money for other people.

EVERY FARM IS A FACTORY

Like any other factory, a farm requires a properly equipped plant. That means well designed buildings, where the products of the farm are produced, the place for which, the tools of material, instructions how to build, were prepared by the College of Agriculture of Saskatchewan. The Forest Service has supplied information concerning the best woods to use.

No expense or pains have been spared to make these bulletins of real value to the farmer. Even if you do not expect to build immediately, these bulletins will help you to work out your plans for extending or improving your plant and will enable you to find out the cost beforehand.

Any of the following bulletins in which you are interested will be sent free on application to the Forest Service, Victoria, B.C. Complete reference sets will also be supplied to lumber dealers on request. For information concerning British Columbia Lumber address W. H. Houston, British Columbia Commissioner, 303 Dominion Building, Regina, Sask.

Farmers Raise Hay!

Insure abundance of Hay and pasture for your stock by sowing a good average to Clover grass. The only reliable dollar resisting hay we have, starts earlier in Spring, grows longer in the fall, yields better and stock relish it more than any grass in the West. This seed is raised right here, and is all-weather and thoroughly ripened. Apply to—

Herbert Kidd left Oyen on Tuesday morning for Little Rock, Ark., where he will visit friends and relatives. During his absence, his farm will be managed by Casper Hoffer.

Wm. Tillet left Oyen on Tuesday morning for Calgary, where he will spend Christmas and the New Year.

Les. Armitage is now enjoying a few weeks holiday in Winnipeg and Pilot Mound.

The Patriotic Dance at the Superba Schoolhouse, held last night was a great success, and great credit is due to Mrs. C. H. Longamy and her committee, who have been working in their efforts. The exact figures are not yet to hand, but it is anticipated that the fund will be swelled by about $65.00. Fine work Superba!

We are informed that Mr. Hallman, one of the Councillors of the Acadia H. M., is giving over to the Patriotic Fund on the Red Cross Fund, the whole of his traveling fees and expenses. Mr. Hallman's generous gift is most commendable and will no doubt be much appreciated.

H. Holds left this district last week to assume his duties on the staff of the Government Elevator at Saskatoon.

What is Germanism?

Germanism is a great criminal conspiracy, a sort of black hand or C. A. Z. organization, all of whose members work secretly, relentlessly, unscrupulously, and with the aim of the enslaving of the world (writes Mr. Herbert Vivian in the New Witness). Every German—from the highest to the lowest—is a born spy, reacting espionage as one of the prime duties of citizenship. When the Kaiser travels, he does not have to keep his eyes open and report all he sees, just as he would be were a common valet or barber.

First War Plan—Well, what are the Russians doing?

Second War Plan—Well, they put the war in the air and shifted the ground force to right hand.

An English Lad as Russian Scout

Russians are studying the habits of a young Englishman serving in the First Army, who has been found in the ranks and was great distinction. From the outbreak of the war, he secured by special permission, to wear the light to serve in the ranks of one of the famous regiments of the First Army, and became one of the mounted scouts for six months. He was not only a very good scout, but he was also a very good soldier. He was with the party of scouts which penetrated to the nearest point to Grozny, and was at one time within eight miles of the city.

His activities came repeatedly to the attention of the commanding officer of his regiment, and at the end of five months he was in command of the mounted scouts of the regiment, and after becoming an officer he has been recommended for decorations for service in the field.

Cable Railways For Wounded

An ingenious arrangement is being used by the French in the hills of the Vosges, in order to transport their wounded. Cable lines are being run up the rough portions of the journey and over places where it is not possible to use a road. Special Red Cross cars or trucks are used on these wire lines, and the wounded are being transported with the speed with which a severely wounded man would be taken to the base hospital. These cable railways have saved many a French soldier's life.

What is Germanism?

Germanism is a great criminal conspiracy, a sort of black hand or C. A. Z. organization, all of whose members work secretly, relentlessly, unscrupulously, and with the aim of the enslaving of the world (writes Mr. Herbert Vivian in the New Witness). Every German—from the highest to the lowest—is a born spy, reacting espionage as one of the prime duties of citizenship. When the Kaiser travels, he does not have to keep his eyes open and report all he sees, just as he would be were a common valet or barber.

GERMANY NOW AT BREAKING POINT

HER HEAVY STRAITS OF WAR

HAS RESOLVED INTO A QUESTION OF HOLDING ON

The Distinctive Military Quality of the British is Their Ability to Hold on, and in the Face of Repeated Reverses, to Live Up to Their Ancient Reputation of Winning Out

A neutral who professes some knowledge of military history asserts that the other day, that Britain has never able to win more than one great battle in any of her wars, but that it always happened to be the last one. Inasmuch as the question of this opinion may be considered the distinctive military quality of the British, namely, their ability to hold on and in the face of repeated reverses to come cheerfully and confidently to the last struggle, where they have been successful ever since there was a British nation. In the present war it has been made plain that the British race has lost none of its military qualities, and there is doubt in no quarter as to the final issue of the war. This war has come to be a question of holding on and of the British race, and the light is, our people are entitled to a knowledge of the facts that are many the pressure of the war is becoming daily more pronounced. A correspondent of the London Times at Zurich, who has been travelling in Germany, finds that a great change has come over the people in the past few months.

He hears talk of getting the upper hand, and is not inclined to continue to hope for victory. Nevertheless, it is plain they desire above all things, their freedom from every man's rule, even though the tide of the war is against them. On the surface the people seem to be governed by a sense of criticism of the Kaiser appears, but beneath the surface there is a content with the continuance of the war, which the Germans had expected to win before now. Every man knows that passes takes his heavy toll of German lives and of the cash which emerges upon the masses of the people. German newspapers and the public relations from the front which emerge the soldiers are supermen, Germans in the trenches are allowed to inform the people at home of the military reinforcements are not sent to Germany, and the soldiers are even to rebuke those who continue to hope for their defeat.

He says that the recent peace demonstration in Cologne would have been impossible six months ago, and that the attitude of the people was frustrated at the last moment by the authorities, they feared that the preparations which had preceded the demonstration would have given Western and Southern Germany, Roman Catholics. For months past the people had been in a state of peace, and when he announced that upon September 29 there would be a

So the demonstration was cancelled but nobody has ventured to rebuke the archbishop, who continues his demands.

It is the rise in the cost of living, and especially in the price of food, that increases more than anything else the growth of war weariness. A correspondent of the London Times on the food question which appeared in the Standard writes as follows: "One of the most dangerous developments perpetrated during the war is the increase in the cost of food. The fact is that the population of Germany has been travelling in Germany, finds that a great change has come over the people in the past few months."

From another source it is learned that the German people are not so content with the continuance of the war as they were. Heroic French Troops

Writer Tells of Wonderful Work of the French Soldiers

After a visit to the whole French front, Edmund Hamilton Bailey writes: "I have seen an unforgettable spectacle. German trenches only partly dismantled by artillery and taken by main force. Never before has the world had an opportunity to witness such a glorious effort as that of our French soldiers. The German trenches were required to be taken, and the battle of the Marne, which related the uttering of our guns, could not resist the assault. The French soldiers are charging with the bayonet."

I have admired the defence works erected everywhere behind our first line. They appear impenetrable and stand behind our soldiers as a wall which no power on earth could destroy. When one has seen what I have seen one gathers the impression that the French soldier of this great war was his own commander, and of superhuman prowess—the most heroic soldier in the world.

I carry away with me also an impression of confidence and love between officers and men, all the companies are united in a sublime brotherhood. The greater than a fighting army is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms.

The French troops I have seen are not all young. They were of all ages, mixed together, and to those who were old, the French soldier is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms.

The grapeshot has moved down the front of the French line, and the French soldier is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms. The French soldier is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms.

The French soldier is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms. The French soldier is a nation in arms, and the French soldier is a nation in arms.

About One Hundred Million Dollars Spent Annually on Liquor in the U.S.

As prohibition of the liquor traffic during the war is being earnestly discussed, it is hardly consider whether such action is necessary and whether the people would favor it. About one hundred million dollars are spent annually on liquor in the United States. It is hardly consider whether such action is necessary and whether the people would favor it.

In England and the United States it is conceded that ten per cent. of all deaths are caused directly or indirectly by drink. In Canada it is estimated that the revenue received from the traffic in alcohol is about five times as much as the revenue received from the traffic in care for the pauper, and the revenue received from the traffic in alcohol is about five times as much as the revenue received from the traffic in care for the pauper.

It has been shown in several places that it costs about five times as much as the revenue received from the traffic in alcohol is about five times as much as the revenue received from the traffic in care for the pauper.

GERMANY IS BEATEN BY BRITAIN AT EVERY TURN

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Writes an Article for the United States Press, and Strongly Combats the View that the War to Date has been Unfortunate for Great Britain

The Best Grain in the World and the Fattest Cattle Are Products of Western Canada

Western Canada does not only grow the best grain in the world, but it also produces the fattest cattle. This is due to the fact that the climate is just what is needed for the growth of the grain and the fattening of the cattle. The grain is grown in the best of conditions, and the cattle are fattened in the best of conditions. Was Friend of Kaiser

General Hunter, Second in Command of the British Forces at Gallipoli, Saved Life of Kaiser

General Sir Archibald Hunter, second in command of the British forces at Gallipoli, was a favorite of the German Emperor. It is said that the Kaiser once saved the Kaiser when a horse was driving in Scotland because it was unmanageable. The Emperor paid the horse a large sum of money, and gave him a standing invitation to visit the Kaiser.

As the number of threshing machines operating in this district was insufficient to handle the tremendous crop harvested,
Messrs. P. Sheldrick and D. A.
McDonald purchased a half in-they brought to this district.

Threshing operations are now completed and everybody is
